AB- <NV> NOVELTY - Method for transferring ownership of assets to participants over a network, where the participants interface with the network using wired or wireless devices, comprises: issuing redeemable tokens having defined redemption values to participants over the network, where each issued redeemable token is associated with a participant; probabilistically selecting a redeemable token,

token. |
AB- <BASIC> DETAILED DESCRIPTION - INDEPENDENT CLAIM included for the following:system for transferring ownership

USE - For Internet.

ADVANTAGE - Facilitates the transfer of ownership in any asset. Provides a forum for consumer goods companies to sell their products. As such, the present invention presents these companies with an alternative distribution channel. This would be attractive to companies with excess inventory. Offers users the opportunity to browse through categories of items in which they may enter into a raffle to win the item. The system can then offer the participants who did not win the raffle item another online destination to find the raffled item, for example by issuing a coupon that may identify the user. In this way, the present invention can be used as a category portal, with an e-commerce infrastructure to track participants, viewing patterns, and online purchases.

AB- <BASIC> USE - For issuing randomly or selectively generated discount coupon through Internet for promoting goods or services.
ADVANTAGE - The system satisfies both old and new customers, by selective issue of coupons . For instance, highest discount rate is given to the persons who respond for the first time, that is, new customers. Instead of random issue of coupons, the coupons can also be issued according to the capability of the respondents by combining coupon issue procedure with a game or electric roulette. P&G in $4.2m payout to settle coupons dispute

US: P&G AGREES US$ 4.2MN SETTLEMENT

Financial Times (FT) 11 Sep 1997 p.39

Language: ENGLISH

The attempt by a supermarket chain and 10 US consumer products groups, including the market leader, Procter & Gamble (P&G), to end the use of promotional money-off coupons has been undermined following an agreement reached with consumers which avoids the need for a lengthy legal contest. Announced during September 1997, the companies have consented to provide customers in New York State, USA, with coupons worth US$ 4.2mn through coupons published in the regions Sunday newspapers. The decision reverses the company's February 1996 year long move in the state which saw it abolish coupon based offers in favour of alternative promotions, and which caused uproar amongst shoppers.

Jewel ran ads and coupons that provided additional savings on Procter & Gamble products. For example, one Jewel coupon offered 50 off Ivory dish detergent, for which Procter & Gamble had also provided a 25 -off coupon in the same Carol Wright mailing. Jewel advertised sale prices on other Procter & Gamble products featured on manufacturer coupons included in that mailing.

Acme Markets ran an ad in the Carol Wright mailing in Philadelphia. It announced reduced retail prices on selected items featured in manufacturers' coupons in the mailing. It also offered to double the value of the manufacturers' coupons upon redemption.

Acme and Jewel declined to comment on the program.

Dominick's Finer Foods took a different approach by running a coupon for a free package of its private label English muffins with a purchase of Folger's coffee, which was also featured on a manufacturer's coupon in the mailing.

A spokesman for the chain said the program results were "less than...

ROCHESTER, N.Y. -- Wegmans Food Stores here and Procter & Gamble, Cincinnati, have become partners in the first accelerated-reimbursement coupon program -- a program intended to give all retailers a short-term incentive to validate coupons electronically, with the long-term goal of clearing coupons electronically as well.

Wegmans will submit its first billing to P&G today on coupons scanned and validated last week, Bob Maybee, P&G director of marketing research, told Supermarket...

"Manufacturers have recognized the value of electronic coupon validation, and now they're willing to provide retailers with incentives to do it," Maybee added.

"Because manufacturers know they save a lot of money with electronic coupon validations, P&G is willing to make its reimbursements more quickly -- thereby allowing the retailer...

...more retailers to make the changeover.

"Over the longer term, electronic validation should also reduce coupon shrink by eliminating the number of coupons lost between headquarters and the clearinghouse."

Detailed Description

... exemplary embodiment, the system and method of the invention implements the probabilistic model by a raffle system that facilitates the transfer of ownership in any asset. An asset can be any...

...or wireless devices, such as the Internet.

I 0 More specifically, the present invention issues redeemable tokens having defined redemption values to one or more participants over the network. Each issued redeemable token is associated with a participant.

When the redemption value of the issued redeemable tokens reaches a collective token value, the present invention probabilistically...

...for sale, is then transferred to a participant who is associated with a probabilistically selected redeemable token.

According to some of the more detailed features of the invention, a redemption value is...

...the asset, with the redemption value corresponding to the collective token value of the issued redeemable tokens.

For example, the redemption value of the asset can be equal to the collective token value of the issued redeemable tokens. Thus, the redeemable token is probabilistically selected, when the collective token value of the issued redeemable tokens reaches the redemption value of the asset.

According to other more detailed features of...

...to participating buyers over the network by specifying a redemption value for the asset. The redeemable tokens can be issued in response to buyer participants purchasing one or more redeemable tokens .

Under this embodiment, the ownership right to the asset that is for sale is transferred to a buyer participant who is associated with a probabilistically selected redeemable token .

Under another embodiment of the present invention, the asset can be a promotional item, for of the invention uses a probabilistic model that is implemented over a web-based raffle system. The system IO includes a central processing raffle server 28 that serves information and content to the user devices 14 over the network 12.

The raffle server 28 executes a token redemption application program that issues redeemable tokens having defined redemption values . The tokens are associated with the participants. In one exemplary embodiment, using the tokens, the...

...using the probabilistic model of the invention.

According to another aspect of the invention, the raffle server 28 can communicate with the remote server 15, which may be, for example, a...

...pledged assets by the promoter. Promoter pledging the asset specifies an incentive criterion for issuing redeemable tokens to participants who meet the incentive criterion. When the redemption value of the issued tokens reaches a collective token value, the present invention selects one or...

specifying a corresponding redemption value ; and transferring the ownership right to the asset to a buyer participant who is associated with the probabilistically selected redeemable token .

Each year, ostensibly as a harmless, low-cost way to promote its games, the lottery prints coupons worth $80 million to $100 million in free plays. Like the US Treasury's Bureau of Engraving, the lottery turns out as much of this currency as it needs. Unlike the mint, however, the lottery's coupon programs are loosely controlled and rife with abuse.

The vast majority of these coupons are...

No such care goes into safeguarding the lottery's bottomless supply of free-play coupons, printed on sheets worth $5 or $10.

"They're hand-delivered to the lottery," says Charles Kelleher, sales executive...used as intended -- in promotions.

The lottery routinely hands out tens of thousands of dollars worth of coupons to radio stations, newspapers and companies that spend their own money to advertise or promote the lottery. English Abstract

A raffle computer for conducting on - line raffle session with processors, data storage and communication component for receiving plurality of raffle ticket purchases from plurality of remote computers (1, 8). The computer processor updates and creates registration records such as accounts, name and identitifaciton of raffle tickets, and verifies if registration matches the record stored in the database (2, 3, 4, 5). Further, the processor determines if the raffle ticket purchases exceeds a threshold number (10), and if so sends ticket numebrs to a winning ticket number selector (14).

Abstract:

The invention presents a method for conducting an on - line raffle session, where an article owner 50 participates in the on - line raffle session by submitting an article 45 via remote computer 31 or carrier service, to a central raffle company 16. The on - line raffle company places the article in the company's data base 17 and the on - line raffle directory 24. Accordingly, the method of raffling the article is conducted over a computer network...

...computers 31, communication lines 30, connecting the remote computers 31 to the central computer 19. Ticket purchasers 56 purchase raffle tickets via on - line over the Internet by remote computers 31. Each ticket purchaser 56 registers information and opens an account by remote computer 31 linked with the raffle company computer 27 of the account division 26. Account information is filed in the ticket purchaser data base 21. The ticket purchaser 56 views the articles 45 on - line in the raffle company's directory 24, and purchases tickets using the raffle entry form 67 template with a credit card debit card or other...

...When the article being raffled reaches 100% raffle price threshold, the raffle closes and the ticket numbers are submitted to a secure electronic ticket number selector 23, which randomly chooses a winning ticket number...

Summary of the Invention:

...it is the object of the present invention to provide a method for conducting an on - line raffle session that permits article owners or agents to participate by submitting articles to the on - line raffle service and receive their full asking price, without paying a commission. It is another object of the invention to greatly increase the number of article owner registrants, and ticket purchasers, participating in the on - line raffle service, by having the raffle over the Internet .
